State Teachers College, Kutztown, Pa.

Kutztown is many things. It is an unbearably tight feeling in the pit of the stomach and it is wearily standing in endless lines on that first day. It is singing the third verse of the alma mater, drinking chocolate milk at a pep rally, and wearing a maroon and gold tie. Then suddenly it is belonging.

It becomes a friendly hi and walks back campus . . . quiet words in the concourse . . . Intermezzo on a record player . . .

It is geography maps, drawing boards, and term papers scattered in a dim hall . . . good fellowship, noise and a glowing cigarette in hall smokers . . .

It is mobiles and laughter, scribbling pencils and pizza, dust cloths and long thoughts in a small room . . . falling asleep over "The Roman Empire" and planning teaching charts . . .

It is a reassuring talk with a class adviser, a brief exchange with the night watchman, a friendly argument with a hall proctor, and a bull session with the guy next door . . .

It is the low wailing notes of a trumpet and the sudden bang of doors . . . the somber dong of the tower clock and the clickety-peck of a typewriter . . .

It is a room in the lab school and the browsing room in the library, . . . a bench on front campus and the portico steps . . . the mail boxes and the commuters' room . . .

It is going to church on Sunday . . . walking to the art studio on a rainy day . . . decorating the gym . . . listening to the budget program in assembly . . . cheering madly at a basketball game . . . dancing in the blue room . . . missing breakfast . . .

It is jury and teas . . . evening performances and senior revues . . . Christmas carols in the concourse and late permits . . .

But it is more than this . . . suddenly it is no longer standing in the shadow of humanity. It is an unveiling . . . an unfolding like the bud of a rose. It is seeing people and self for the first time and it is the dream of what people, a nation, a world may be . . . it is learning to live. Then suddenly—it is graduation . . .

Greetings from
The General Alumni Association

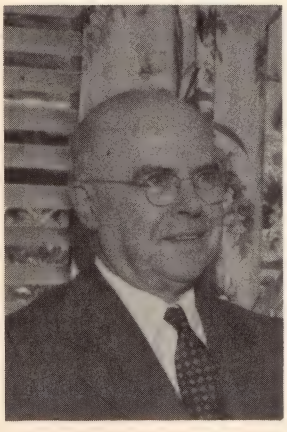
The Alumni Association expresses hearty sympathy in the joys and hopes of the members of the Class of 1955, and welcome each one into the teaching profession.

The school is a spiritual creation, not a material thing. It does not cease to exist in vacation time, nor is it destroyed when a schoolhouse burns down, or crumbles into ruins. Pupils and teachers come and go, taxpayers die, patrons move away, school officials constantly change, yet the school survives. The real school is a fundamental principle embodied in an institution. This principle is the cooperation of all the forces of the community for the systematic training and education of all the children.

The best schools are found where the State, the local school officials, the taxpayers, the parents, the pupils, and the teachers all work together harmoniously and effectively to accomplish the aims for which the schools exist—the education of children. The teacher, who is on the firing line where teaching takes place, is the all important person. The teacher develops the spirit of the school.

It is sometimes said that no one can steal one's education. This is true only after one has acquired that education. But there are many agencies that may steal the child's education by preventing him from grasping that opportunity or by removing the opportunity. Anyone who removes needed educational facilities or who fails to provide adequate facilities is guilty of robbing the child of the opportunity to acquire an education. No one should be willing to close the door of education to children. Rather, as Daniel Webster said, "Open the doors of the school houses to all the children of the land."

The best public relations come from happy and satisfied pupils. The teacher is the very heart of a good teaching program, and is encouraged to develop and maintain cordial relations with the parents and the community. Cordial relations don't just happen, they have to be cultivated. When the child takes home a cordial invitation to his parents and friends to attend some school activity, they respond by their presence and become boosters of the school. Invite the cooperation of citizens in educational activities and endeavors. Cooperation is basic to the principle of public education. School officials, taxpayers, parents, and pupils have work to do. If they neglect their duties, no teacher can entirely overcome all the deficiencies. However, the teacher says, "I am here to help the child to come to the best there is in himself, he being what he is." Teachers of today believe that the schools are made for the children.



In the name of the Association may I wish you God Speed and abundant success as teachers.

Sincerely,

CHARLES F. SEIDEL,

President of the Alumni Assoc.

GEORGE M. LEADER

President's Message to the Class of 1955

A teachers college receives its students at a point in their lives when, by natural processes of maturation and by developmental influences of social institutions, their characters have already been largely formed. At the same time and for the same reasons, they are becoming capable of academic and professional activity. More importantly, they are able to think for themselves, to inquire rather than merely to "learn."

Without assuming that no other processes of change are going on in its students or that their professional activities are entirely self-contained and unaffected by their characters and by practical problems of career, love, and status, the teachers college may well direct its whole program to foster the poised professional growth of its students. This function is all-inclusive, but it has two basic limitations: (1) the intellectual nature of an individual is not the whole person and (2) formal educational processes cannot wholly occupy the developing capacities of the prospective teacher.

The objectives of all activities in a teachers college focus on the development of analytical and critical thinking and on conduct supplemented by significant student teaching experiences. This pattern of pre-service education enables the student to evaluate for himself the contributions of putative experts, creative thinkers, and artists, as well as all types of imposters. The teacher educated in this manner is not supposed to be an expert, a purist, or a creative artist; he is rather at this point in his career a person able to profit from the contributions of those who possess expertness, creative genius, character, and culture. He is a cultivated amateur in the arts, an intelligent layman in the sciences, an independently minded citizen in politics, and an intelligent participant in the processes of our social order.

To achieve these outcomes in the graduates of a professional teacher education institution, the educational pattern embodies not merely imparting masses of information and accepted theories, but a carefully calculated selection and arrangement of experiences appropriate to the curriculum pursued by the prospective teacher. The use of these materials on a post-secondary school level involves comprehensive treatment and is by no means simple. In the earlier stages they are dealt with directly to introduce the students to art, literature, mathematics, and science; as well as, the sciences related to man and society. In latter stages, on the base so provided, it is appropriate to raise questions about the kinds and nature of principles, processes, and practices. From the Pisgah of the practicum in their senior year, students attain the perspectives to ask questions. They are then doing student teaching, and their questions are neither a priori nor vicarious; they are immediate. Their questions assume the character of the title of Schweitzer's immortal book, OUT OF MY LIFE AND WORK. These questions, formulated not as ultimate philosophical problems, with which even seniors cannot deal, but as alternative specifications and proposals in answer to questions which challenge them, enrich and complete their capacity to make responsible judgments.

The Class of 1955 has been privileged to acquire this capacity to make responsible judgments as prospective teachers at this state teachers college. The grant of the baccalaureate degree of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is a testimonial of achievement. Soon its members will enter upon a great profession. The trustees and the faculty join me in extending to the Class best wishes for successful careers.

TO MY CLASSMATES:

Certainly many of us have taken a moment or two this year to look back over our college years and ask this fundamental question: Have we received an education?

This evaluation must be individual. Everyone will have different standards. There is no one to fool, no one to impress—nothing but the cold, informing, reality of evaluating yourself.

You can judge better than all the tests devised by the faculty, the amount of factual information you have digested. This book should remind you of the amount of pleasure that went along with the hard work. Pleasure is a relative term. No strict definition is here attempted. Yet in in your evaluation it certainly may not be discounted.

A study of your attitudes or your present philosophy of life opens up another field of speculation. Here we qualify the original question, "Have we received an education?" by adding—for the democratic way of life. By our intimate associations with classmates and friends, have we required a respect for the aesthetic, the scientific, the altruistic, and the realistic individual; or more correctly for individuals with various combinations of these traits?

This year for the first time we have had the experience of guiding children in their adjustments to life. Perhaps, we can use this new insight to measure more adequately our own adjustments.

In the future may this page remind us to humbly survey our educational attainments.

Student Teaching

All-College Revue

After weeks of hard work the Senior Class presented "Asp Me Not"—a musical extravaganza—on February 4, 1955 . . . Cleopatra, after admitting she is "Not Historically Significant," meets the renowned Antony . . . as Cleo and Antony suffer through the throes of romance, Alexis and Seleucus discover in each other "A Love of My Own" . . . the wise soothsayer fortells the bitter end, but Cleo, Alexis, and Seleucus are in favor of "Asp Me Not" . . . hence enters the villain Caesar with his scheme to get rid of the bewitching Cleo and regain the service of Antony . . . through the dancing of the handmaidens and trickery of Seleucus, Caesar is bitten by the asp intended for Cleo . . .

A typical rehearsal night . . . .

Danny Whitaker and Ethel Varga rehearsing their lines under the excellent direction of Claire Ward . . . Philo, Demetrius, Lepidus, the Guards, and the Moors all picking up their cues . . . Lorraine Polinski, David Proctor, and the handmaidens perfecting their dances . . . in the Music Studio we find Diane Bauer and Gerald Leisey delivering their speeches . . . Production and Executive Staffs constantly on the job . . . plus those faithful faculty members with their invaluable help . . .

But most of all we remember the beautiful music of Paul Seidel and the book and lyrics of David Proctor . . . "Asp Me Not" will be one of our fondest memories of Kutztown . . .

The Avalanche courtmen of the '54-'55 season set the final tally at 5 wins and 12 losses with a 2 and 10 conference record . . . December smiled brightly on the cagers . . . won four out of the five pre-holiday games . . . then came the New Year bringing a season-long losing streak . . . broken only by an 80-69 conquest over Shippensburg . . . heartbreaker of the season—a two point loss to West Chester brought on by a foul in the last five seconds . . .

Top honors go to captain Rog Cocivera, again the Avalanche's master of the hoop . . . began the season with a tall 44 against Trenton, surpassing his own single game scoring record . . . after 17 games of play total tallies reached 404 . . . again eclipsing his own single season record of 341 set last year . . . another record of 155 field goals plus 94 from the foul line shows an average of 23.8 points per game . . . during a three year Avalanche career has rippled the cords for a grand total of 1028 markers . . . which in itself is laudable . . .

Hustling, 6 foot-3 inch Ed Roth . . . finished season with second place scoring honors of 226 tallies—an average of 13.3 per game . . . saw the service this year to prove his ability on the hardwood which was evident last season as a newcomer . . . veteran, senior John Karo, again showed his merit as a rebound man . . . consistently a top performer contributing 114 markers to the Maroon and Gold scoring column . . . Don Raker, a newcomer at mid-season, extremely valuable court man, wound up in a starting position . . . tallied 104 points for fourth place scoring honors . . .

Unfortunately, veterans Carl Diehl and Dick Moore . . . showing great potentialities . . . along with 6 foot-3 inch freshman Kieth Newhart . . . were ineligible for all but six games . . . two hustlers, freshman Eddie Bruchak and sophomore Bob Leidich contributed heavily to the Avalanche cause . . . new additions, Bob Steinmetz and Joe Rothdeutsch saw service in 16 and 13 games respectively . . . Don Kistler, 6 foot-4 inch center, ineligible for conference games through transfer, totaled 65 points in five non-conference clashes . . . promises to be valuable asset next season . . . rounding out the K-town roster are Dick Miller, Lew Shollenberger, and Tom Sawyer . . .

Records? . . . this was the season for school records . . . 96 points tallied against Trenton—top score of any Avalanche team . . . Bloomsburg's 108 markers—highest score against any Kutztown team . . . Cheyney's 90-70 victory—first time any Cheyney athletic club defeated a Kutztown club . . .

All told, the '54-'55 Avalanche was an impressive team . . . totaling 1191 against 1350 opposing markers with a per game average of 70.1 points . . . Coach Walter Risley serving tenth season at the helm . . . aided by assistant coach, Bill Carr '56, and managers Burt Witthuhn, Lee Moyer, Bob Nagle and Bill Stickler, expects the eleventh to be even greater . . .

Spring 1954 . . . baseball reigns supreme . . . with cheers and jeers come victory or defeat for the Avalanche diamond men . . . despite the top mound action of Kerm Blank and Bob Loose . . . and the powerful plate action of big Bob Coleman . . . final record reveals a convincing goose egg in the win column . . . of the season's nine clashes, several were tough one and two run losses . . . others were!! . . .

Tennis

Kutztown netmen . . . aspire to great heights each season . . . such is the case again this year . . . Bob Blefko, Stan Jenkins, Al Koehler, Les Miller, Fred Slopey . . . returning veterans . . . to form nucleus of coach Doctor Horace Heilman's racqueteers . . . promising new additions—Dan Baer and Floyd Humphrey will round out the forces . . .

Despite last year's record . . . showing five losses . . . the KSTC courtiers . . . a spirited team . . . displayed top performance . . . lost through graduation were . . . Karl Godshall, Dick Reed, and Bill Walbert . . .

This season, as last . . . heavy schedule against strong physical education schools . . . West Chester and East Stroudsburg . . but determination and effort promise to be rewarding . . .

The Servicing of School Annuals is just as important to us as the printing of them

The many unknown details which "pop" up daily are entirely too much for any one member of the staff to shoulder, so that today many schools in the East are relying on our experienced year book men, men who have helped many staffs. A number of schools were able to continue their publications without lowering their standards due to the efforts of these men in building annuals within their budgets. We not only help you to produce your book at a moderate price, but also plan it so that your book is above the average. We appreciate the opportunity to produce this annual and wish to acknowledge the excellent cooperation received from the members of the staff.

GOOD PRINTING TELLS AND SELLS

A properly planned and printed catalog, folder or broadside is a highly productive "silent salesman" for your business. It tells your story, graphically and convincingly . . . . sells your merchandise or service profitably. Let us help you put good printing to work, building your business.
